Get Your Tenant Eviction Report Today and Pay with Your PayPal Account

At EvictionRecords.com, we know our customers want accurate tenant eviction report information and they want it fast. Sometimes, the longest part of the ordering process can be inputting credit card information and billing information. We know that this can become tedious and time consuming, so we have decided to partner with PayPal to make ordering the tenant eviction reports and criminal reports you need from us even easier than before.

In addition to providing our customers a quick and reliable way to pay for their tenant reports, PayPal also allows our customers to make secure transactions. All of the financial information is stored on their secure PayPal account, so customers do not have to provide us with their credit card number or expiration date. Tenant screening customers also benefit from the security of PayPal's fraud policy, so they know that their purchase is as secure as possible.

We have never taken security lightly at EvictionRecords.com, but we know that customers have found that providing merchants with credit card information has become riskier over time. We wanted to make sure our customers had every opportunity to get the tenant eviction report and criminal report information they need without worrying about credit card fraud.

Customers who do not want to use a credit card to pay for their tenant reports also have the option of using their PayPal balance. This would be similar to using a debit card, and the purchase can still be completed instantly. Once the purchase is made, our customers know they will be receiving the best data available. EvictionRecords.com has a commitment to continuing to improve the ease of our tenant screening services, and we feel that by adding PayPal as an option our customers will benefit even more from working with us. This checkout option not only saves time but also allows our customers to rest easy, knowing they can get the tenant eviction reports they want without worrying about financial fraud.
